Statements of Audrey Hepburn at the National Committees Meeting Geneva, 27 January 1991

Audrey Hepburn

I came here to listen and not to really have the floor. But, first of all I think I am allowed to say welcome to you, because I live here and seating here I realize how many of you I know, how many of your countries I have been to to me and in this 4 years with UNICEF I've considered myself so fortunate to so often be able to speak about the progress the world is making towards peace. Now I ask myself, is peace possible? what I know is possible, if our commitment to our children. They shall have priority in this time of war and in times of peace. And an attack in the Middle East will once again , innocent victims, but we will keep our promise to protect them more than ever. Thank you
